Individuals may enroll in a limited number of courses at Southeast Tech without applying for admission to the school. Students are not considered enrolled in a program until they have made application, been accepted, and paid the entrance fee. When students have completed 12 credits in a field of study they are encouraged to consider making application for admission to a program. A counselor in the Admissions Office is available to discuss this possibility.

Students wishing to receive financial aid must be accepted for admission, working towards completion of a program, and be enrolled in a minimum of six credits per semester.

Insufficient enrollment may result in a class/workshop being canceled. When Southeast Tech has to cancel a class, all money is refunded to the student.

Special accommodations are coordinated through the Disability Services Department.
